

THE EVENING BULLETIN
TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1886.

SENATOR STANFORD, the hundred millionaire of California, will not resign his seat in Congress, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary.

Some one wants to know whether R. B. Hayes would go to Congress. Of course he would, if he had half a chance; but the New York Sun says he will not, if there is any Republican decency left in Ohio.

HON. THOMAS A. ROBERTSON has introduced a resolution in Congress to appropriate $3,000 to erect a granite shaft in Larue County, this State, to mark the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, late President.

The Republican who tackles the Circuit Clerkship against the Democratic nominee is certain to be in a pitiable condition after the August election. To use a common expression, he will come out of the race Parry-ed.

The Republican Executive Committee met yesterday, and nominated 'Squire Robert Hunter for County Judge, George F. Bateman for Circuit Clerk, and Wm. Berry for School Commissioner. It is rumored that some or all of them will decline the honor.

The distillers of Jessamine County have refused to list their liquor for taxation, and the Sheriff and County Attorney have given notice of their intention to bring suit for the taxes due. Bronston, the U. S. Revenue Collector, acting under instructions from the Commissioner at Washington, refuses to give any information as to the amount of liquor on hand.

The recent registration in Louisville gives city 23,080 voters, nearly 8,000 more than the vote cast last year. The Courier-Journal sees a hopeful sign in this and thinks "the best people are beginning to take an interest in public affairs." There is but little doubt that the better element of a party could always rule, if it would try. And the day is coming when it must.

The Louisville Post, discoursing on the Rowan County troubles, says:

"The outlaws, simply because they are organized, have the rural community at a disadvantage. If Judge Cole dispenses vigorous justice in punishing the offenders, then he is to hold it if he is supported by the Commonwealth's Attorney and a jury, we believe a half dozen convictions and swing penalties will make Rowan orderly again and prevent any further need of calling out troops."

If the regular Circuit Court can not stop it, the next resource the order-loving citizens of Rowan will be thrown back upon will be the organization of Judge Lynch's Court. The impartial hanging of two or three men each year is the difficulty will be permanently removed.

There is no doubt that the masses of the citizens of Rowan County are peaceable and law-abiding, and if they will only have the courage to come forward and aid the courts, all this lawlessness will soon be forever stopped. Let a bold and determined effort be made, and the desperadoes will soon meet with the punishment they richly deserve. A few executions would work wonders.

Give the Babies a Show.

(Boston Record.)

Now is the time to think of the babies. Look out for the babies, and if it is possible of all them, if you want to. Civilization has killed more than one innocent by overburdening it with clothes in hot weather, day and night. Fresh air and room to kick are the best preventives of childhood infantum.

Excellence in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he would die. The recovery was due to the skill of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes, he was well and had gained flesh thirty-six pounds. GOING TO SEE A CIRCUS.

A MOB FORCES AN ENTRANCE TO HURBURT & HUNTING'S CIRCUS.

Shenandoah Police Overpowered by Roughs, Who Cut the Holes of the Tent and Engage in a Disgraceful Fight—Hunting's Circus in town, July 12.—According to the large bills displayed throughout the town announcing the appearance of Hurburt & Hunting's circus here, they arrived in town and gave a street exhibition of their trained horses. The town was crowded and after the parade all went to the grounds to await the opening of the show. The large tent was soon filled, and about 1,300 had assembled outside. Among them were many roughs, whose appearance is generally a signal for a disturbance.

About 8 o'clock, just before the performance began, the crowd outside determined eight to get inside free of charge or break up the circus. They pressed close to the main entrance, and with a yell forced the entrance and rushed into the tent, closing the dogs were performing of the chairs which they occupied. Great excitement prevailed, but the police succeeded in driving some of them back and restoring peace. The roughs, however, were not to be destroyed that easily. They attacked and cut the ropes, allowing the canvas, which was very large, to swing around like the sail of a vessel. The spectators were panic stricken and made a rush for the doors, but Manager Hurburt, realizing the situation, hurriedly jumped from the ring with a revolver in hand and faced the mob. He said he was prepared to defend his property even at the cost of his life. "We want to see the show," he shouted, "but we have no time to begin." This was greeted with yells and hisses, after which he announced his inability to go on with the performance. The crowd, however, descended and attacked right and left, while the police force, consisting of specials and regulars to a number of fifty, headed by the Chief Burgess, tried to surround the mob and make arrests. The latter were prepared and poured a volley of stones into the police, who were beaten down with stones and beaten the other officers. A number of prisoners, however, were captured, but the crowd in every case released their companions and drove the police away.

The conduct of the police was mainly directed to the immense crowd who were trying to get outside through the main entrance, which had been blockaded by the canvas, which suddenly fell. The mob, however, had many ways of entry, being cut and knocked down in their endeavors to open the mob continued to stone the crowd, and finally engaged in a hand to hand encounter, during the progress of which the chief Burgess was struck in the head with a stone and seriously injured, while his higher officers in many cases shared the same fate.

WIGGINS PROGNOSTICATING AGAIN.

He Feels Certain His Great Storm Will Reach Here Next Sunday.

Orlando, Fla., July 13.—Professor

Sam Wiggins, the weather prophet, insists that the great storm he predicted for this fall will be on hand. He says he does not anticipate any further great change in the weather until fall.

"Remember," he says, "will open cold and

stormy, promontory to my great storm coming on the afternoon of September 3.

and the great war of the elements will come

as sure as the sun is in the heavens.

He adds that the winter will be

severe, across the Atlantic and traversing

the country will exhaust its energies upon

the rugged front offered by the Rocky Mountains. Fishermen in the maritime provinces and in Newfoundland have not been slow to explore the new conditions from which they have made arrangements to be port

A TERRIFIC MINE EXPLOSION.

NELSONVILLE, Ohio, July 13.—A terrific ex-

losion occurred in the Johnson Brothers' and the Patterson mines, at Burchett, O., last evening, killing the miners, Wm. Thomas,

Williams, and fatal injury of Charles

H. Johnson, John Hallam and Louis White.

The coal in this mine is worked with machinery. A leak had been discovered in the roof of the mine, which furnished the explosive power. The mine manager

and a companywoman who had a great success

was slain at scores of country houses and was as generally received as anybody in England. She told me it was all very well

to tell a man he was safe, and then she always

had to go to the doctor.

I have seen the great English people snubbed

very hard by those still higher than themselves

in the social scale. The Queen sets the example, and it is largely due to any such as she

wishes to please for a favorite maiden minor. I hardly recognize her former favorite, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, when she came to court, because that lady married

to please herself instead of her sovereign.

In a sense, she is a Queen, and she is the greatest author and soldier and the most famous politicians as people whom their notice

ranges, and on whom their disfavor inflicts a positive harm. The curious part of it is that the other people concur in the opinion.—Adam Bede's Letter.

granted him more favorable terms of surrender than were offered by Gen. Crook. From various sources of information army officers have learned that the hostiles are just now reduced to the utmost extremity and that the great majority of them, including women and children, are ready to return and surrender, even with certainty of being sent to some prison for life. "The great influence which the chief exerted over them is all that prevents them from abandoning the war path at once."

The Tonto hostiles who recently surrendered to the authorities at Fort Apache and are held as close prisoners there, say that Geronimo was held in the shadows, but not necessarily, and that the number of hostiles with him is twenty-seven men, thirty women and two children. The squaws are all well armed, and as expert in the use of firearms as the men and count each for a man. The officer does not believe that the hostiles prevent them from abandoning the war path at once.
